

46. A graft system for repairing an aneurysm in a vessel comprising: a delivery catheter having an outer sheath and an inner portion contained within a lumen formed by the outer sheath, first and second graft segments located in the delivery catheter between the inner portion and the sheath, the first and second graft segments being formed of a material which expands from a radially contracted position to a radially expanded position when the sheath is withdrawn, the first and second graft segments being positioned in the delivery catheter in a non-overlapping manner such that the first graft segment may be deployed independently of the second graft segment and the second graft segment can be deployed thereafter in a telescoping manner with respect to the first graft segment by advancing the catheter into a lumen formed when the first graft system is deployed and further withdrawing the sheath such that the second graft segment is deployed partially within the first graft segment, and a transition element fixed to the inner portion, substantially between the first and second graft segments, the transition element having a smooth tapering diameter in the direction of the first graft segment to facilitate insertion of the second graft segment into the first graft segment after the first graft segment has been deployed.--
